Dearest Sweetheart,

Well, today is Thursday and still no letter from you. I'll bet you must be pretty busy. I should be busy now too. Cleaning up the place and all that but I don't feel particularly ambitious. Or I shall try to write a little letter to my baby. And I'm afraid it will have to be very little because all I can say is I love you. I wrote to you last night and told you all the news, and you know what an eventful life I lead.

The colored fellow is still plowing out in back ~~for~~ but it is getting it pretty well in shape. He is a pretty old man and yet he sure is peppy.

It was nice and warm to-day. I don't have to have a fire in the little stove. Mrs Turner said she was going to get me a damper for the stove so then maybe I will be able to check the fire. Once it gets started it burns like mad and it don't stop till it is all burned down. How is your cold, Sweetie, are you taking any thing for it? Also your ankle? (yes I said ankle) Does it still bother you. I believe my Cunny is all better. It doesn't burn any more so that trouble must have gone away. I hope it doesn't come back.

Darling, you're such a sweet Cutie and a cute sweetie. And I can hardly wait till I see your smiling face and can run up and give you a great big hug.

your own

Frank.
